

Dear Doug Reece:

I am writing in response to your ad on the CopyEditor job board.

I was the copy editor for five years for Philadelphia's largest "alternative" weekly "The Welcomat," which now is known as "Philadelphia Weekly."

In addition to this, I was involved in several other aspects of the paper, including being (at various times) music editor, production manager and associate editor as well as writing a regular column on music for eleven years.

For the past few years I have been working as a freelance writer and a musician. Currently, I am proofreading and fact checking a forthcoming book on Bob Dylan and film, written by C.P. Lee, which will be published in the near future by the British publisher of books on pop music, Helter Skelter. I have also contributed articles on music to various web-sites, most notably bobjdylan.com.

A plain-text e-mail version of my resume is below. If you are interested, I would be happy to mail you clips of my writing.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,
Peter S. Brown
